LITERARY COURSE.

The Literary Course is divided into the departments of Ethics, Metaphysics, Physics, Literature, Latin, French, Mathematics and Elementary Branches.

TEXT-BOOKS.

In Ethics.—Hickok's Moral Science, Butler's Analogy, Butler's Ethical Discourses and Philosophy of the Plan of Salvation.

In Metaphysics.—Hickok's Science of the Mind, and Butler's Sermons on Human Nature.

In Physics.—Lardner's Natural Philosophy, Youmans' Chemistry, Johnston's Chemistry of Common Life, Loomis' Geology, Hitchcock's Geology of the Globe, Dana's Mineralogy, Gray's Botanical Text-Book, Chambers' Elements of Zoology, Cutter's Physiology, and Lardner's Astronomy.

In Literature.—Whately's Logic, Mill's System of Logic, Blair's Rhetoric, Whately's Rhetoric, Fowler's English Grammar, and Brown's Grammar of English Grammars.

In Latin.—Bullions' Latin Grammar and Reader, Leverett's Lexicon, Smith's Classical Dictionary, Ovid Delphini, Virgil Delphini, Livy, Horace Delphini, Cicero De Officiis.

In French.—French Grammar, Boyer's Dictionary, Telemaque, Charles XII., Sainte Bible, Corinne, and Fleurs du Parnasse.

In Mathematics.—Colburn's Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's Sequel, Loomis' Arithmetic, Loomis' Algebra, Loomis' Geometry and Conic Sections, Loomis' Trigonometry and Logarithms, and Davies' Logic of Mathematics.

In Elementary Branches.—Webster's Spelling Book, McGuffey's Series of Readers, Smith's Primary and Quarto Geographies, Bullion's Analytical Grammar, Bullions' Exercises for Parsing, Botany for Beginners, Wells' Natural Philosophy, Smith's Illustrated Astronomy, Willson's History of the United States, and Willson's Outlines of History.

ORNAMENTAL COURSE.

The Ornamental Course is divided into the departments of Instrumental and Vocal Music, Drawing, Painting and Embroidery.

INSTRUMENTAL AND VOCAL MUSIC.

Music is taught as a science and as an art, but chiefly as a science. On this account those whom Nature has endowed with the smallest musical gifts frequently become the best performers. Instruction is given on the Piano, Guitar, Seraphine and Accordeon. Unusual attention is bestowed on Vocal Music. Pupils furnish their own instruments or pay the usual rent.

DRAWING AND PAINTING.

Great expense has been incurred to secure the services of a gifted and distinguished Carolina Artist. He is a faithful and laborious teacher, and gives instruction in every branch of his profession.

EMBROIDERY.

In this department instruction is given in the art of working mats, ottomans, table-covers, piano-covers, collars, sleeves, &c., &c.

REGULAR COURSE.

The regular course of instruction, as already indicated, is that which has been found most successful in making finished scholars. Students are taught to think and act for themselves, and are required to state the how and the why of every step that is taken. The improvement realized in going through this course resembles the transformation of Osseo :

*At one end goes in a school girl,
Rough and rude and void of culture ;
From the other comes a lady
A wise and well accomplished woman.*

PARTIAL COURSE.

Every accommodation is offered to those whose limited time will not allow them to pursue the regular course. Parents are permitted to select the studies of their daughters.

PUBLIC LECTURES.

Lectures on literary and scientific subjects are delivered in the College Chapel at least once a week.

APPARATUS.

The Laboratory contains all necessary Mathematical, Philosophical, Chemical, Geological and Astronomical Apparatus, Maps, Charts, &c.

EXAMINATIONS.

Each class is subjected to rigid daily examinations. All patrons of the school are invited to attend these at any time during the session.

Public examinations, to please promiscuous assemblages, have been discontinued, because, even when honestly conducted, they injure the pupils, flatter the parents, and deceive the public.

REPORTS.

On the last day of each month a report of the scholarship, punctuality and deportment of each pupil is sent to her parents.

These Reports state the truth and tell parents exactly what their daughters have been doing.

SCHOLARSHIP.

The scholarship in this institution is of a character seldom attained by female schools. It claims to be equalled by few and excelled by none. This claim is based on the following grounds:

1. The text-books are unusually thorough and extensive, and the examinations and discussions go to the bottom of the subjects.

2. The method of teaching is, in many respects, new and peculiar, and experience has proved its excellency.

3. In the selection of teachers considerations of policy are disregarded and the highest qualifications are sought.

4. Students, finding it difficult to sustain themselves in our lower classes, go to other schools of high renown and in a few months are "graduated with the first distinction."

5. Many of the most successful teachers in our country have been educated here, and they are now in great demand, with reputations rapidly extending.

DIPLOMAS.

Diplomas are certificates of scholarship. They are conferred on those who pass the required examinations. The time required for graduation depends entirely on the preparation, diligence and capacity of the student.

DEGREES.

The degree of C. P. is conferred upon those who complete the studies of one department.

A. B. is conferred upon those who complete the literary course.

O. G. is conferred upon those who complete the studies of the literary and ornamental course.

UNIFORM.

The Uniform for Winter is, bonnet trimmed with blue, cloak and dress of blue merino: for Summer, bonnet trimmed with pink, and dresses of solid pink and white.

REQUIREMENTS.

Each pupil is required,

1. To attend the calling of the rolls and the recitations of her classes.
2. To be obedient and respectful to the teachers.
3. To observe the rules of strict morality and politeness.
4. To wear the prescribed uniform on public occasions.
